

wisconsin's no call list has made our time at home in the evenings with my family comfortable again. As a family with kids and a hectic shedule finding time to sit down and stay focused on a task is highly important. Dinner, homework, reading, music lessons and personal time was continually being interrupted at our house. Once the "no call list" law became active we saw an overnight difference in our home lifestyle. It became our home again. The phone calls coming into our home were from people we knew. People may argue that you don't have to answer the call or use call screening, but that still requires someone to interrupt what they are doing to go read a text message and make a decision. As parents we need to pick up the phone everytime it rings, just in case one of our kids is in a situation where they need us, i.e. calling from a pay phone or a borrowed cell phone, because they need to be picked up early or they feel sick or endangered.

Also we need to pick up the phone everytime it rings, just in case our elderly parents living nearby need help in an emergency situation i.e. they need someone to help them becuae they have fallen or feel ill.

Our quality of home life has improved greatly with the wisconsin "No Call" list. We have ownership of our phone number again and our personal time in our home. In todays hectic world we should be able to have "Quality of life" at home.
